Acting Chief Executive

“The NHS plays a vital role in our lives, and we know it faces real challenges. Listening to people’s thoughts about their care is one of the best ways to improve services. Every comment, concern, and compliment helps health and care professionals see what works and what needs to change, so care can be safer and better for everyone.

“We want to say a heartfelt thanks to all the local people who have taken the time to share their experiences, and to the health and social care professionals who have listened and acted on that feedback. Your commitment has helped make a real difference for our community.”

A message from our chair

I am delighted to welcome you to the fourth annual report from Healthwatch Tower Hamlets, which has a statutory responsibility to residents.

In addition to acting in our local area, publishing independent reports and making constructive recommendations we aim to make sure that local views reach the national level through the Healthwatch network which covers other parts of England.

Together with North East London Healthwatch partners, this year we:

- Identified 655,165 issues from the experiences of 162,365 people in the area.
- Generated 1040 reports and 317 dashboards of GP and hospital services alone which will greatly facilitate monitoring of developments.

Each year, we select two topics for scrutiny that are based on issues that residents have told us about and may align broadly with the strategic priorities and commissioning plans of service providers.

Our topics this year were:

- The experiences and barriers to perimenopause and menopause support in Tower Hamlets.
- The experiences of health and social care services for older people from the Somali, Chinese, Jewish and Vietnamese communities.

To conclude, this year we thank patients and families for reviews on health and care services which greatly exceeded our target of 4800 reviews and are helping us to raise awareness of issues and improve care.

Catherine Moody - Acting Chair

Statutory funding:

We're funded by Tower Hamlets Council. In 2025/26 we received £149,000, which is the same as last year.

A year of making a difference

Over the year we've been out and about in the community listening to your stories, engaging with partners and working to improve care in Tower Hamlets. Here are a few highlights.

Spring

We attended various health fairs to speak to men over 65 to understand how health and care services could better support them in the community with cardiovascular disease.

Our 2024 survey on the 'Barriers to accessing Mental Health services' was shared with residents of a new pilot neighborhood mental health centre to help the NHS improve services for residents of the centre.

Summer

We presented our Information and Signposting Services to Public Health Community Navigators and explore ways we could collaborate and improve advice and information services for local people..

Our feedback from users of local maternity and neonatal services supported improvements to services for people who are on maternity journeys

Autumn

We observed a shift with the Physician Response Unit, Royal London Hospital to view consultations of vulnerable patients at home, thereby reducing unnecessary hospital visits.

Our insights on young people with SEND transitioning to adulthood was feedback to council leaders at the Safeguarding Adults Board conference.

Winter

We spoke to residents at a Health, Wellbeing and Disability Expo who told us of the difficulties they faced when seeking employment or training due to their health conditions.

We arranged an NHS menopause specialist from NHS Barts Health to attend a meeting with local carers to talk about perimenopause and menopause.

Working together for change

We've worked with neighbouring Healthwatch to ensure people's experiences of care in East London are heard at the Integrated Care System (ICS) level, and they influence decisions made about services at North East London ICS.

This year, we've worked with Healthwatch across North East London to achieve the following:

Working together for Change

Collaboration between Local Healthwatch organisations, whether within a region or across different parts of the country, strengthens local voices, enables shared learning and supports change at a wider level. By working together, Healthwatch can identify common challenges, compare effective approaches and build a stronger evidence base to inform service improvement at both regional and national level..

Using insight to drive change:

In North East London, this partnership is delivered through the Community Insights Programme with the Integrated Care Board. It brings together the experiences of 193,448 local people, (up from 163,340 last year), and has identified 655,165 issues, concerns and examples of good practice, (previously 540,000). Using the Community Insights System, the eight Healthwatch organisations have produced 1,040 reports and 396 dashboards on GP and hospital services alone, (previously 822 reports and 317 dashboards). This provides Healthwatch and system partners with a strong source of evidence to spot trends, understand variation between communities and inform planning, commissioning and service improvement.

Improving access to GP services:

Across North East London, we worked with Healthwatch partners to review the GP registration process for people who may not have formal identification. This included understanding how many local practices had signed up to the Safe Surgeries commitment, created by Doctors of the World, and exploring how accessible registration was for people facing barriers to care. The work strengthened collaboration across the region and helped highlight where services can become more inclusive, accessible and responsive.

We've also summarised some of our other outcomes achieved this year in the Statutory Statements section at the end of this report.

Making a difference in the community

We bring people's experiences to healthcare professionals and decision-makers, using their feedback to shape services and improve care over time. Here are some examples of our work in Tower Hamlets this year:

Young people transitioning to adulthood – SEND

Hearing personal experiences and their impact on people's lives helps services better understand the issues people face.

We presented the views of young people with special educational needs and disabilities (SEND) who are transitioning to adulthood, to stakeholders and residents at the Tower Hamlets Council Safeguarding Adults board conference and Adults Safeguarding Residents event.

Making a difference in the community

We bring people's experiences to healthcare professionals and decision-makers, using their feedback to shape services and improve care over time. Here are some examples of our work in Tower Hamlets this year:

Co-production and Engagement Delivery review

Help shaping the future of health and care services in the local community

The government want to move our work to councils and the NHS in the future with Healthwatch set to be abolished in 2027.

We spoke to residents, volunteers, community groups, carers, and local partners to help us understand and shape the future of health and care once Healthwatch services are abolished.

We wanted to understand how any future services could work more closely with communities, focus on local needs, include groups who are often left out, and show impact in better ways.

Residents who use health and care services, especially those who are seldom heard, have important ideas that should guide local plans, reviews and decisions.

Residents should continue to have the opportunities to share and voice their experiences once Healthwatch is abolished.

Listening to your experiences

Services can't improve if they don't know what's wrong. Your experiences shine a light on issues that may otherwise go unnoticed.

This year, we've listened to feedback from all areas of our community. People's experiences of care help us know what's working and what isn't, so we can give feedback on services and help them improve.

Supporting women experiencing perimenopause/menopause

Last year, women told us that more is needed to be done to raise awareness and understanding the symptoms of perimenopause and menopause .

What did we do

We launched a survey and spoke to 113 women about their experiences and barriers to support for perimenopause and menopause in Tower Hamlets.

Key things we heard:

told us that a lack of knowledge of perimenopause and menopause had prevented them from accessing support told us that having access to more information and educational resources would help them.

51%

had positive experiences with healthcare professionals who provided effective and person-centred support and treatment.

Our work showed how more work is needed to be done to raise awareness of perimenopause and menopause, understanding the symptoms and how people can access the right support their need.

What difference did this make?

Our findings and recommendations will be shared with NHS senior leaders and local stakeholders to help develop improvements.

Understanding People's Experiences of the NHS App in Tower Hamlets

Insights from residents about their awareness, experiences, and use of the NHS App

We spoke to 68 residents and 51 staff working in primary care services to identify barriers that prevent residents from using the NHS App, including digital skills, registration or login issues, language barriers, access to devices, and confidence using technology

Key things we heard:

38%

of residents told us they had never used the NHS App before

19%

of respondents said they had difficulties booking appointments which created a barrier for them using the app.

Staff members within the local primary care networks told us that older residents, migrant communities and people with language barriers struggled the most in navigating the NHS App.

Our research has shown that some residents had negative experiences of using the NHS App or would struggle due to such things as digital skills and language barriers.

What difference did this make?

Wei will produce a report and share the findings and recommendations will be shared with NHS senior leaders and primary care network leads and staff.

Listening to your experiences

Patient Experience in Tower Hamlets

In 2025–26, we spoke to 7,830 residents about their experiences of health and social care services within Tower Hamlets.

What did we do?

We completed 102 health care visits to speak to residents about their health and care services. Most visits during this year took place at local GP practices across the borough and at the Royal London Hospital.

Key things we heard:

24%

of respondents did not find it easy to get an appointment with their GP.

28%

of respondents thought communication between their GP and hospital was good.

36%

of respondents rated the quality of care and treatment received from their GP as good.

Appointment availability and waiting times upon arrival were noted as areas of ongoing concern for patients throughout the year.

Staff attitudes and the quality of treatment provided towards patients were generally positive areas during 2025–26.

What difference did this make?

We were able to present our findings and recommendations from our patient experience engagement to the Tower Hamlets Primary Care Transformation Group and the Royal London Hospital Patient Experience committee meetings.

We shared data and insights with some GP practices who contacted us to get a better understanding of what their patients were feeding back to us to help support improvements to their individual practices or health centres.

Hearing from all communities

We're here for all residents of Tower Hamlets. That's why, over the past year, we've worked hard to reach out to those communities whose voices may go unheard.

Every member of the community should have the chance to share their story and play a part in shaping services to meet their needs.

This year, we have reached different communities by:

- Continuing our work experience programme for local secondary school students to gain experience working in a professional environment and helping to improve their confidence and communication skills.
- Attending meetings with women at the Bengali Women's Online Peer Support Group for women who are isolated or unable to leave home, The Carers Centre, The Wild Women Collective, and Oceans Women's Association coffee morning to increase awareness of our work and provide information and signposting.
- Speaking with older people from the Jewish, Somali, Vietnamese and Chinese communities to understand their experiences of health and care services.

Listening to Older people from the Jewish, Somali, Vietnamese and Chinese Communities

We investigated access to health and care services for these community groups.

Tower Hamlets is one of the most ethnically diverse boroughs in the UK, with a growing population of older adults, many of whom experience long-term conditions, social isolation, and barriers to health and social care

What difference did this make?

We will gather insights and identify barriers that may prevent older adults from these specific ethnic backgrounds accessing support.

We will capture perceptions of existing services, including what has worked well and what needs improvement.

Heard about the barriers faced by the deaf and hard-of-hearing community

We attended a workshop facilitated by Deafplus to hear of the challenges and barriers faced by residents who are deaf or hard of hearing.

We were taken through the support available for the NHS App, 999 BSL App and navigating NHS 111.

Participants also discussed some limitations of the online health services specifically when accessing emergency services.

What difference did this make?

We want to engage further with residents who are deaf or hard of hearing to gather their insights and experiences of health and care services and share these with senior leaders within health and care services

Information and signposting

When you're struggling to find an NHS dentist, looking for help about how to make a complaint, or need advice about a good care home for a loved one – we're your first port of call.

This year 3,671 people have reached out to us for advice, support or help finding services. These conversations also help us to understand where, and how, your care can be made better.

This year, we've helped people by:

- Providing up-to-date information people can trust
- Helping people access the services they need
- Supporting people to look after their health
- Signposting people to additional support services

Information and signposting

Helping to Establish Patient Participation Group

A resident contacted us for advice on establishing a Patient Participation Group (PPG) at their GP practice.

They were keen to learn from people already involved in successful PPGs and wanted to understand the best approaches to setting up a new group. We connected the resident with a member of an established PPG in the local area, who agreed to share their experience and provide support and guidance as they worked towards setting up a new PPG at their practice.

Providing information on perimenopause and menopause

As part of our menopause research project, our team attended meetings with local women's groups and community organisations to listen to residents' experiences and raise awareness of menopause-related support.

Through these conversations, we found that the terms perimenopause and menopause were still unfamiliar to many people, with limited understanding of the symptoms and the support available. In response, we shared information about perimenopause and menopause, explained common symptoms, and signposted residents to local services, helping to improve awareness and understanding.

We also found that many residents were unaware of the Women's Health Hub at Mile End Hospital. Our team provided information about the range of services available through the Hub and explained how residents could access them through the referral process.

Refreshing our Information and Signposting materials

Our volunteers and staff decided to refresh and update our Information and Signposting materials following resident feedback at community engagement events and from phone call enquiries.

Our volunteers co-produced new leaflets that group relevant services together. This will make it much easier to provide guidance to the community so that they can navigate between disabilities support and safeguarding for example.

We have also produced a Healthwatch Tower Hamlets branded Information and Signposting Guide, which includes most support organisations within TH in one place.

Showcasing volunteer impact

Our fantastic volunteers have given over 200 days to support our work. Thanks to their dedication to improving care, we can better understand what is working and what needs improving in our community.

This year, our volunteers:

- Visited local services, such as Idea Stores, events and community centres to promote Healthwatch and our work.
- Designed leaflets and posters to promote our services on social media.
- Supported building partnerships by contacting local organisations to promote our research projects.
- Carried out Enter & View visits to Pharmacies, dental practices and co-produced reports to help improve these services for patients and staff.

At the heart of what we do

From finding out what residents think to helping raise awareness, our volunteers have championed community concerns to improve care.

Isabella

"Throughout my time volunteering at Healthwatch I have gained a lot of confidence in my creative communication, health-related writing skills and ability to effectively communicate the organisation's message to the community.

Volunteering at Healthwatch has highlighted the importance of community engagement in shaping and improving healthcare services. It has also emphasised the vital role that local health and social care organisations, such as Healthwatch, play in supporting the health and wellbeing of underserved communities."

"I joined Healthwatch Tower Hamlets to gain UK experience and to upskill myself. From the beginning, it has been a very valuable learning experience. I had the chance to speak with a wide range of people living in Tower Hamlets and listen to their experiences with NHS healthcare services.

Healthwatch gave me the opportunity to work on a mini research project about the NHS App, which helped me understand the challenges people face when using digital health services. I also worked independently on the NHS Safe Surgeries initiative.
